

SUBMARINES SINK FIVE BRITISH MERCHANTMEN SPREAD BLOCKADE FEAR

SAILINGS FROM BELFAST SUSPENDED AS RESULT OF NEW GERMAN TERROR OFF ENGLISH COAST.

FRENCH BOAT IS SUNK

Torpedo Ship Reported Destroyed Off Newport—Turkish Fleet Shells Russian Black Sea Port.

The view that the Germans have entered definitely upon a policy of destroying England's maritime commerce by use of submarines is corroborated by German newspapers, which speak of the sinking of the British merchantmen during the past few days as a new source of action which it is hoped will produce striking results. Five vessels have been torpedoed, three in the Irish sea and two in the English channel. The German papers lay stress upon the long range of the submarines, whose ability to co-operate as far as 1,000 miles from their base distinctly increases the menace to shipping.

Heavy fighting has been resumed along the Warsaw front in Poland after a long period of comparative inactivity. An official communication from Petrograd describes battles along the Vistula near Borjowmo, where it is said the Germans were dislodged with bayonets from the trenches they had captured, two companies of their soldiers being almost annihilated. The Germans later undertook an attack upon the Russian trenches and succeeded in gaining the one position.

The Russian occupation of Tabriz, north Persia, unofficially reported last week, is announced today by the Russian war office, which says that the Turkish army in the vicinity was put to flight.

A dispatch from Athens states that Greece is actively engaged in military operations, and that she will assist Serbia in case of invasion by Austro-German forces.

London, Feb. 1.—Again British interest in the military activities on the continent has been overshadowed by the fact that Germany has brought the combat to Great Britain's front door. What is regarded here as the new German policy, of a submarine blockade of British ports, is temporarily effectual, at least in the case of Belfast, where sailings have been suspended. Liverpool authorities, however, announced that no interruption in the trade of that port is contemplated. The two British merchant steamers torpedoed by the Germans off Havre are the largest commercial vessels that have ever fallen victims to German submarines. The three ships in the Irish sea were all small coasters.

Active War From Base. The belief expressed yesterday that the raiders could not remain for more than a few hours in waters so far removed from their base, has been exploded by the news that the mail steamer Leinster encountered a German submarine off Dublin on Sunday, twenty-four hours after the sinking of the three coasters. Probably the raider "newed his supplies of food and fuel on the coasts of Ireland before sending her to the bottom."

Reports of Russian operations over a vast area continue to come from the continent.

Victory reports the resumption of hostilities in eastern Serbia. In France and Flanders the situation shows no change. The allied armies will be largely reinforced with new troops in the next fortnight.

French Boat Is Sunk. Berlin, by wireless to Saville, Feb. 1.—Reports to the Overseas news agency from Paris says that the French torpedo boat 219 has been sunk off Newport, Belgium. It is reported also through the same source that German aeroplanes, having succeeded in throwing some bombs on the French town of Baillieux, nine miles west of Mazingarbe, and near the Belgian frontier.

Sight German Submarine. London, Feb. 1.—A message received here this afternoon from Southampton says that a German submarine, supposedly the U-21, was seen off there early this morning.

Southport is a seaside resort of England in the Irish sea, eighteen miles north of Liverpool.

Shell Russian Port. Berlin, Feb. 1.—Official dispatches received in Constantinople announced that the Turkish fleet on Jan. 26 successfully shelled a Russian military place on the west coast of the Black sea.

Secretary States That It Is Unlikely a Nation Will Protest on U. S. Buying Ships.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Secretary Bryan today formally denied that any government had protested against the bill pending in congress for the purchase of ships by the United States. Mr. Bryan issued this statement:

"No nation has protested against the passage of the shipping bill and it is not likely that any nation will do so, since the bill does not necessarily raise any diplomatic questions.

"It is not proper in the state department at this time to discuss the manner in which the authorities conferred by the bill will or should be exercised. We assume that the authority conferred upon the president and those who will be associated with him in the matter will be exercised properly and with a due regard to the nation's welfare.

MILWAUKEE CITIZENS AROUSED AT FINDING AN ABANDONED BABE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Milwaukee, Feb. 1.—Aroused at the heartless manner in which a baby boy one month of age was abandoned Sunday night in the snow in an alley in the rear of 169 Mason street, the police are making every effort to find those responsible. No clue to the identity of the parents has been discovered.

The baby is at the emergency hospital all according to physicians, it probably will die. The child had a temperature of 103 and pneumonia is certain to develop it is said.

The child was found by two passers-by who were attracted by its cries. The baby was wrapped in a small blanket and cloak. The clothing had worked about the child's head and the baby wore no shoes or stockings. Its feet were stuck in the snow.

ENGINEER KILLED IN MONROE WRECK

The wreck of an Illinois Central railway passenger train shortly after noon today, to the north of Monroe, resulted in the death of the engineer and a large number of passengers.

MICHIGANSTORM BOUND; COMMUNICATION DEMORALIZED

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Detroit, Feb. 1.—Rain and sleet last night and today practically demoralized telegraph and telephone circuits throughout the state. A telegraph wire dropping across a high point on the Saginaw and Flint electric road today, temporarily destroyed the dispatching system of the Pere Marquette railroad and only scheduled trains are operating.

RAKEMAN'S KILLED IN LOCAL TRAIN WRECK

Local railroad men of the Milwaukee road today knew little concerning the wreck near Davis Junction early yesterday morning, which cost the life of a brakeman named John A. Rake. The conductor of the train, John A. Rake, was killed in the wreck when a passenger car derailed and fell into a ditch when a trestle broke. It was a heavy coal train destined for company use on locomotives in this section.

AMOS PINCHOT FIRST WITNESS AT HEARING

Charges Associated Press With Having Shown Partiality to the Capitalistic Side of Labor.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, Feb. 1.—Amos Pinchot was the first witness at today's hearing of the federal industrial relations commission. He was permitted to finish the reading of testimony he had not concluded while on the stand Saturday, but which has been placed in the records.

In this he had accused the Associated Press of partiality to the capitalistic side of labor controversy in the handling of news.

"I do not believe," said Mr. Pinchot, after finishing the statement, "that the Associated Press will carry on its wire dispatches concerning my testimony here about it. There is a by-law in the Associated Press which provides that any member who publishes derogatory to the Associated Press will be disciplined, and is subject to losing its franchise. Commissioner Walsh asked the witness if he knew any instance of a member of the Associated Press being disciplined for violation of the alleged by-law. Mr. Pinchot replied that Mr. McCormick, editor of the Chicago Tribune, had been so disciplined for publishing derogatory to the Associated Press in an article in which he knew of any public record of such a blanket and cloak. The clothing had worked about the child's head and the baby wore no shoes or stockings. Its feet were stuck in the snow.

The witness said that he himself had a copy of the by-law. After being asked by the commissioner to produce it, he was excused without further questioning.

SAILORS ON BARK DID NOT KNOW THERE WAS A WAR.

London, Feb. 1.—The German bark Vignella was brought into Plymouth on January 10 with the astonishing news that nobody aboard her knew that there was a war. It was said that she left Corinto on July six with a valuable cargo of nitrate. The report was that the first intimation of war reached her surprised crew when she was held up in British waters and ordered into Plymouth.

TAXPAYERS' LEAGUE MEMBER IS INDICTED

MADISON GRAND JURY RETURNS TRUE BILL FOR CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT VIOLATION.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Feb. 1.—A test case to determine whether an organization of persons may conduct a campaign against candidates for office and certain political principles without filing regular expense accounts will be made in the circuit court here as a result of an indictment returned by the grand jury that has been in session here for the past six weeks.

This indictment has been returned against a member of the Home Rule and Taxpayers' league, whose name is still withheld on an agreement that the person indicted to stand trial, another indictment has been returned against the head of a Chicago advertising agency that paid for thousands of dollars of advertising making any account of it, as is required of other voters. The league agreed that "there will be little left of the corrupt practice act" if public violations of its provisions are countenanced by the grand jury.

The grand jury extended 445 witnesses before today and the fact of testimony. It returned many indictments for smaller offenses and eleven indictments for felonies. The names of the persons will not be made public until next week.

Facts Fully Presented. The members of the Home Rule and Taxpayers' league came voluntarily and fully stated the facts relating to the work of the league during the recent campaign thus removing the question of facts in dispute. "They stated that it was the understanding of the grand jury that the league was not obliged to file any report of the sources of its disbursements. They frankly published a list of the legislative candidates throughout the state who they sought in every way to elect, and that it worked in every way to defeat the ten constitutional amendments, but that this work was not political in nature, not because they were seeking to influence the election, but that therefore the league's activities did not come under the provision of the corrupt practice act and that it was therefore not obliged to report its receipts and disbursements. As we understand, the repeated opinions of the attorney general to the secretary of state, the home rule and taxpayers' league was not obliged to report under the corrupt practice act when there is no campaign, yet when there is a campaign on and it is seeking to influence the election, then pending election, it must be reported the same as all other bodies, organizations or persons seeking to influence voting at the time of the pending election.

One Member Indicted. "This matter is of the utmost importance and we therefore return a true bill against one of the members of the league, not because he was more guilty than any other, but because of his willingness to have a test case made of the question of whether it constitutes political activity and political disbursements. Such test may determine without any personal reflection or damage or injury to him. The public will understand that a test case is made in this case simply because of his position in the organization. Under his statement a large number of other persons would also be liable to be presented the same as would also all persons who contributed to the funds of this or any similar organization doing similar work, in excess of the sum of $50, but we have not presented any of these, as a single determination in this case will settle the law in this respect. As the facts are all practically conceded there is nothing to determine, as we understand it, the matter of law involved. The matter in our judgment is important for if the construction contended for by members of the league is correct, then there would be nothing left of the corrupt practice act.

"We return a true bill against a advertising agencies. This agency contracting agencies. This agency contracted and used for a full page political advertisement in Wisconsin every daily paper in Wisconsin on November 1 and 2. There was paid for this advertisement in one day in the city of Milwaukee over $1,500. Nearly all other dailies of the state published the same article at a cost of probably $4,000. We therefore return a true bill against the member of the foreign advertising agency for having published a political advertisement without complying with the statute, in respect thereof. We deem the matter of the greatest importance, for if arrangements can thus be made without the state for doing all manner of political advertising, with misleadings, if not false headings and without stating by whom the advertisement is authorized and by whom it is paid for, there would be nothing left of the corrupt practice act. While the name of the taxpayer's league, we are satisfied that the league and its officers knew nothing of it and that the reading placed on the heading of the report was unauthorized.

The report comments the chief of police for the orderly way the league is run and takes a rap at the vice commission report, saying that of the several places of ill-repute named in the report, evidence could be found against only two.

Pierce Professes Ignorance. Charles E. Pierce professed ignorance of the entire grand jury matter when questioned concerning it today. "I can't make a statement because I know nothing about it," he said when inquiry was made with reference to the indictments returned at Madison.

COTTON LOAN POOL BENEFIT EXPIRES TODAY.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Benefits of the federal "cotton loan pool" expire today. This is the last day for applications for loans from the $135,000,000 fund voluntarily pooled by national banks. The federal reserve board decided that it was unfair to the banks to have money tied up awaiting cotton loan applications longer than the time necessary for the cotton growers, warehouse men or brokers hit by the war have had time to ask and receive money from the pooled funds by this time.

The federal reserve board which had in its unofficial capacity as the central committee to handle the cotton loan fund subscribed by all national banks, thinks the situation is now well in hand. Only a comparatively small part of the $135,000,000 subscribed has been loaned out.

INDUCES BRITAIN TO LIFT EMBARGO

Successful in his mission, B. G. Work, president of the B. F. On the announcement of Work's success in lifting the embargo, arrangements were made in Akron to put 3,000 men back to work who had been idle during the embargo.

Petrograd, Feb. 1.—Tribune is paid to the German artillerymen in all directions. The German artillerymen in all directions were in the trenches and the German artillerymen in all directions were in the trenches and the German artillerymen in all directions were in the trenches.

Very coolly the German artillerymen went about their work, although they must have known that we would serve them hot for them. Our old third shell fired their range and the German guns, killing fully half of the German force of artillerymen. The others sought shelter, but quickly returned and brought the remaining three guns into action against our trenches again.

They had only time to fire two rounds when another shell from our battery smashed two more guns, destroying their crews.

But those artillerymen had been given their orders and their bravery was dauntless. They returned after a short interval, returned to their single remaining gun, and kept it going until another Russian shell laid it low.

A YEAR'S DREDGING WILL BE MADE AT CULEBRA CUT

(Correspondence Associated Press)

Panama, Feb. 1.—Annual engineers now are optimistic regarding the permanence of the channel through the Culebra section, where the slides recently occurred. For the past month dredging operations have been more than able to keep ahead of the incoming soil and there is no longer any serious anxiety about assuring the formal open of the canal on March 5.

Col. Goethals and the other canal engineers are of the opinion that at least a year's hard and steady dredging will be necessary before all movements of earth will have ceased. Notwithstanding the handicap of the slides, traffic through the waterway is increasing, as is shown by the tolls collected.

Advertising To Create Sentiment

A certain Municipal Rapid Transit Company enjoyed that generous portion of unpopularity usually falling to the lot of the American street railway.

The most popular thing a politician could do was to attack this railway.

It was hammered on all sides, and as a result many unjust burdens were imposed on it.

The managers of the railway decided to take the public into its confidence.

It began a newspaper campaign showing up the unfair taxes it was compelled to bear and how these burdens were hampering service.

The result has been a better public sentiment, the relieving of the company from many of its difficulties, and improved transit services for the people.

M'CUE SILVERWARE STILL UNRECOVERED

Transient Arrested for Burglary Protests His Innocence to Police—Asks for Examination.

Evading severe questioning by the police, Fred Miller, the transient arrested for the burglary at the J. W. McCue residence early Saturday morning, stoutly maintains his innocence and insists that he is unable to tell where the silverware is concealed, the only part of the stolen goods which has not been recovered, is "planted."

Miller was arraigned before Judge Maxwell this morning and after the customs of court procedure were explained to him, decided to ask for a preliminary examination which was set for ten o'clock Thursday morning. He was unable to provide $800 bail and will spend the time in the county jail.

Chief of Police Champion was unable to secure much information from Miller, who remained surly and unresponsive to all attempts at questioning. It was learned through Barry, a companion that the two men had been at work unloading coal in Evansville for a few days before coming to Janesville. Barry was placed under $500 bail bond as a witness against Miller, who was also sent to jail to await the pleasure of the court.

Franklin Cannon, a young Janesville man, received thirty days under the commitment law for a "crazy drunk" offense Saturday afternoon. Cannon gave Patrolman Thomas Morrissey a merry chase on Milwaukee street and is said to have caused quite a disturbance resisting the officer and using abusive language. In court the young man pleaded guilty and was fined twenty-five dollars and costs. He was given thirty days. He was instructed by the court to take the pledge for one year.

Webster Pease, who is known to the police as the correspondence school Sherlock Holmes, was arraigned for second offense drunkenness Saturday afternoon. He was fined twenty-five dollars and costs. He was instructed by the court to take the pledge for one year.

RAINS, SLEET, SNOW WITH STRONG BLOW MAKE TRAVEL SLOW

DIVERS KINDS OF WEATHER HINDER RAILROADS, STREET CARS AND INTERURBAN.

CONDITIONS IN STATE

Reports From Various Districts Show Storm Is Widespread—Will Be Colder Tonight.

Every description of the weatherman's snow category visited Janesville in the forty-eight hours preceding noon today. Snow of the regular mode, sleet and rain, followed each other in rapid succession, demoralizing traffic on railroads, interurban and street cars together with general traveling about the city.

Yesterday's weather report predicted snow for today with expectations that the mercury would drop this afternoon or tonight. Today's report says "Heavy snow tonight and Tuesday, probably mixed with rain. South portion colder Tuesday with north-east winds."

Railway trains today on both local roads were from fifteen minutes to two hours late. On the Milwaukee road, trains from Chicago experienced rain and sleet in northern Illinois. There was practically no snow there. The 11:35 northbound heavy train, which arrived here last previous to 1 o'clock this noon, nearly two hours late.

On the Milwaukee road during the morning all traffic was tied up at the Mineral Point division. The way freight, No. 91, became stalled in the snow between Juda and Monroe. Freight No. 92 was in trouble at Orfordville but derailed at Janesville. Consequently the Janesville bound passenger train from this division was held up and did not arrive here until 1 o'clock.

Interurban travel between here and Beloit was in bad shape. The 10 o'clock car was still in Janesville at noon with little prospects of getting out before an hour had elapsed. The rain which was in evidence all day, froze the tracks with water which froze this morning keeping the wheels flanges from obtaining a firm hold. This was true of the local car system.

Superintendent Murphy and crews of the local street car line experienced considerable trouble with the heavy packed snow and a car and crew was kept going throughout the night with the idea of having the tracks open for cars tomorrow morning. The local rolling stock was unable to make travel possible today and the back, back, forward and back system was used with much effect.

The Rock Country Telephone company reports little wire trouble from the heavy snow. The Wisconsin system was badly demoralized in all directions. There was one line between here and Milwaukee was in working order and Associated press telegraph and Associated press telegraph did not begin to arrive until 12:10 o'clock.

Sunshine appeared in the morning with a freshening of the air. Both snow and rain fell before noon, shortly after dinner a lowering of temperature was experienced. The sidewalks, covered in the morning with an inch of water, froze quickly. Travel was particularly dangerous on many, both during the afternoon and evening, made use of the middle of the roads.

State Report. Milwaukee, Feb. 1.—A blizzard of unusual proportion is sweeping throughout Wisconsin, paralyzing traffic of all kinds. There was scarcely any street car service. Telephone and electric railroad schedules have been knocked out of all semblance to regularity.

Service Damaged. The Wisconsin Telephone Company reports several hundred calls down in several directions and the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Company state that their service has been hampered in many places. A drizzling rain through the night turned to snow early today. The rain formed into ice and the freezing temperature weighing down the wires until they were unable to resist the strain and snapped in many places. Telephone lines tangled in many places and in many instances carrying the poles down.

According to the weather bureau the blizzard is moving slowly eastward but it is expected that the snow will continue all day and night, probably ceasing tomorrow morning, followed by colder weather.

At Sheboygan. Sheboygan, Feb. 1.—Rain, snow and heavy sleet storm has knocked out the interurban traffic and all telephone and telegraph service. Sheboygan had a wild night Sunday and a heavy wind and sleet storm prevailing throughout the night. The blizzard continued to rage today.

Green Bay Affected. Green Bay, Feb. 1.—Green Bay is in the grip today of the first blizzard of the winter. The storm has isolated the city in a degree from other points in the state, and wire service is crippled. Railroad trains from the south are hours behind schedule, and local and interurban cars are operating under difficulties. Carried by strong wind, the snow has drifted and caused trouble in the operations of trains and street cars. Telephone service is cut off between Green Bay and the south and the telegraph service is also badly crippled. Scores of telephone and telegraph poles are down near Fond du Lac and Cambria.

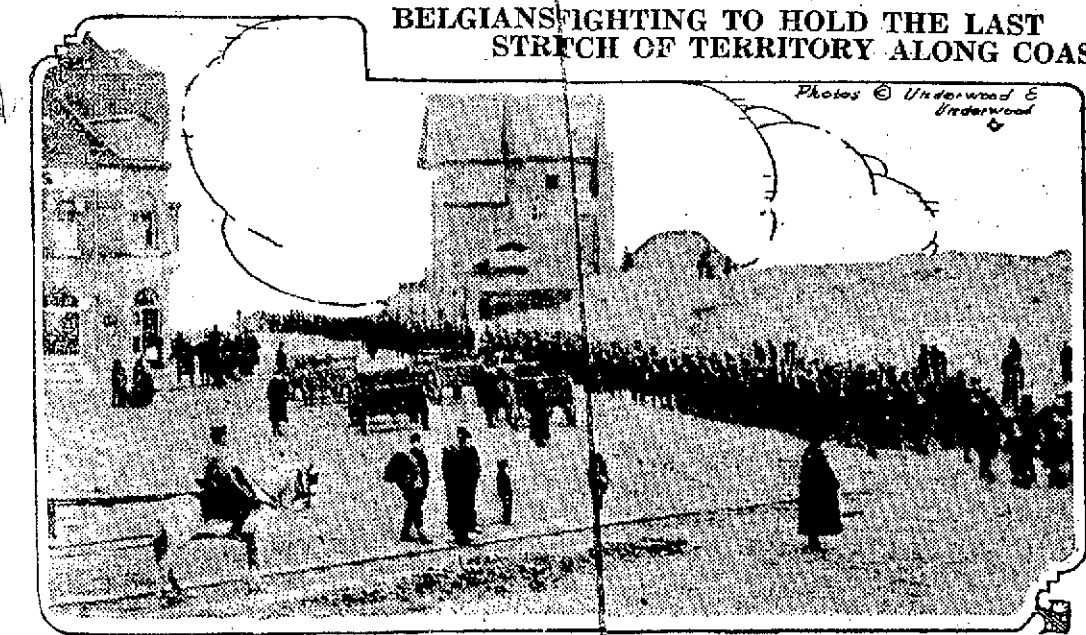

GERMANY IN VIOLATION OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

Paris, Sunday, Jan. 31.—The official afternoon statement of the war office says: "The British steamship 'Tokomaru' has been sunk by a torpedo from a German submarine. The English vessel 'Tea' has also been torpedoed in the same locality in the Irish seas in which the former English steamers 'Linda Blanche' and the 'Ben Cruchan' were torpedoed and sunk."

"Heretofore the Germans before attacking merchant marine have always given the crews sufficient time to embark in small ship boats."

"That custom has been abandoned, as is shown by the bombardment of the steamship 'Admiral Gothe' which was fired with Belgian women and children refugees."

"German marine has dared to systematically violate the code of international law."

The Belgians are fighting to their utmost to hold the last dunes in the northwestern strip of Belgium. Regiments of Belgian infantry are seen here passing through one of the small towns of the region.

BOXING "TEAS" FOR WOMEN IS FAILURE

Broadway Unable to Entice New York Women to see Fighters Maul Each Other Even If Tea Was Served.
(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, Feb. 1.—Boxing teas for women simply don't go around these parts. The gentler sex that makes its way home via the New York subway is willing to tolerate other things Parisian but when it comes to watching two huskies maul each other around the rings—well, that's another story.

John Weissmuller, who runs the Broadway sporting club in Brooklyn, made the bid for the women fight fans. John advertised that he would put on a weekly tea party, with boxing strictly on the side. After thorough press-agenting John threw open the club for the first affair at which he promised feminine boxing enthusiasts would gather.

It was pretty tough on John. There were plenty of "gents" in their shirt-sleeves, who chewed gum because John had admonished them not to smoke in the presence of "ladies," but there was only one "lady" present. She confessed that she was a sent over the bridge by a New York paper.

Princeton graduates and undergraduates are expressing some surprise at the naming of John H. Rush of Cleveland as head coach of the "tiger" football team. Rush had led the Princeton record for the 100 yards—9 4-5—while he was in school took his football on the sidelines. Some of the Princetonians, however, are pointing out that Bob Zuppke, the most brilliant coach the 1914 season produced in the west, was not a better man in football when he attended Wisconsin university.

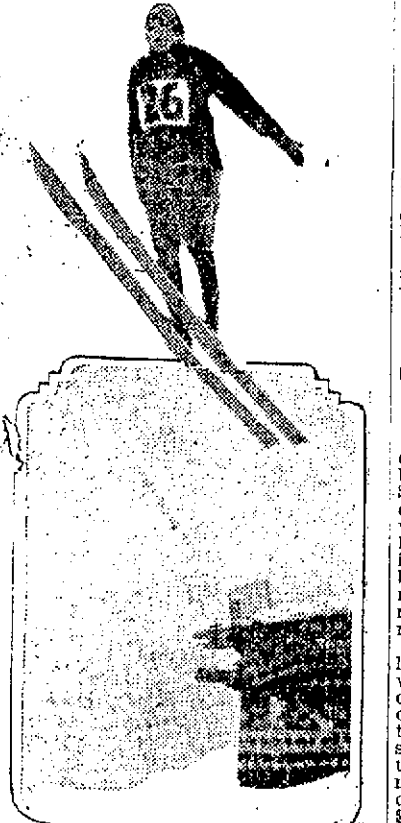

Poughkeepsie may take on all the aspects of Henley in the English regatta season as the result of the change in the rowing program to become effective this year's races. Instead of bunching the freshmen, junior and varsity races in the afternoon as in the past, the two minor events will be rowed in the morning. There were plenty of "gents" in their opinion that this would reduce the size of the crowds. The belief expressed here now is that the arrival of crowds is Poughkeepsie on the night before the big races, the mingling of old friends and the opportunity of making the hike up the river a sort of vacation will transform what formerly was only an afternoon's outing into a real sporting event.

CLINTON NO MATCH FOR Y. M. C. A. TEAM

Capt. Brown and Other Stars Whip County Y. M. C. A. Quint Saturday Night at Clinton.
—Score 47-20.

The Clinton Y. M. C. A. basketball team, who up to Saturday night had not lost a game this season, were badly defeated on their own floor at their own game by the Y. M. C. A. first team of this city by a score of 47 to 20. Janesville arrived at Clinton stiffened and cold after a seven mile ride across country in a bob, railroad connections at Bardwell being poor, which forced the players to resort to this way to get to Clinton in time to play.

The game was exceedingly rough, but was also very cleanly fought. Fatter scored ten field goals at center, and deserves special mention. The Janesville team are a fast five, and are scheduling games with surrounding squads of unusual strength. They form a combination of guards who play fine ball together.

Clinton were fairly heavy, and had the advantage on their small floor, which resembled a good sized room, with a low ceiling. There was no out of bounds, consequently the game was fast from start to finish with little time taken out.

The Clinton five are a fast, aggressive team of players, who only lack experience and proper training to make them into one of the fastest teams in this section of the state. They are heavy and possess a strong pair of forwards. Three members of the team never played the game until this year.

The lineup was as follows:
Janesville—Fatter, 10; Brown, Capt. 11; Fatter, 12; Mott, 13; Booth, 14; Clinton—Harry Kilpatrick, 15; Harold Kilpatrick, 16; Keough, 17; Larson, 18; Lawson, 19.
Field Goals—Fatter 10, Mott 5, Brown 4, Harold Kilpatrick 6, Harry Kilpatrick 1, Keough 1, Lawson 1.
Free Throws—Fatter 1, Lawson 2.
Time of Halves—20 minutes.
Referee—Noyes, Janesville.

FEDERALS WILL HAVE A MINOR LEAGUE IN NEW ENGLAND STATES

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 1.—President James A. Gilmore of the Federal baseball league, announced here on Saturday at the close of a conference of baseball men that the Federals would have a minor league in New England. It is planned to put teams in those places where organized baseball is now played. He said he had received a dozen inquiries already in regard to the proposed league from men with money.

Briefly outlining the plans of the league, President Gilmore said it would be made up of eight clubs, each club to be financed locally, and Federal league to furnish the players. Between thirty and forty players, he said, are now available. Each club is to be furnished with six players, as a nucleus for building up a team. The clubs will pay to the Federal league $200 a month for each player, the parent league paying the difference when the player's salary is in excess of that amount.

After the meeting reports were current that New Haven, Worcester, Hartford, Springfield, Providence and Manchester, N. H., might be included in the league.

SPEEDY CARDS WIN TROUNCING MONROE BY 28 TO 7 COUNT

Caldow's Lakota Cardinal Colts in Exceptionally Clean Game Easily Defeat Visitors.

In a game devoid of fast basketball features, aside from the fact that the general playing was of a higher class and spotlessly cleaner than that displayed a week ago in the Belvidere game, the Janesville Lakota Cardinals had an easy time defeating the Monroe Cardinals, 28 to 7 at the Auditorium Saturday night. Monroe's playing, as a whole, was mediocre. Perhaps there is one feature for which the Lakotas can be commended upon for the low score. This would be the stellar guarding game of the Cards, who held the Green county visitors field basket scoreless in the final half.

During the entire game the defense of the Janesville five was stronger than the force at Monroe and Liego. Ryan and Edler disrupted the rushing game the visitors opened play with and before the first field basket had been scored the Monroe men knew that it was impossible to play the Janesville basket territory for short shots. The long, eccentric throws of Monroe began to predominate and although Collette, who is a clever and fast little right guard with Brodland, center, made many attempts throughout the remainder of the half and during the second period, their shots always missed the ring. Janesville's defense was impregnable.

The absolute elimination of the "rough stuff" pleased the crowd. Sentiment has been against this since the Belvidere game. The contest of Saturday evening was practically model in every respect.

But eight fouls were called during the first half. Janesville was called five occasions. The lone foul on Dalton in the second period gave Monroe its only opportunity for scoring following time, and Brodland accepted the opportunity.

The addition of Atwood to the line-up was noticeable and the Janesville team went away with five field throws, being the high man for the evening. Hemming was able to outjump Brodland. Had the Lakotas practiced together heretofore the score would have been considerably larger. With Hemming outjumping Brodland, and having Janesville had plays mastered, they would have worked to perfection, as every Janesville man was an eight cylinder 1915 model, compared with his opponent.

Collette played a fast game for his team, but Atwood was a little too fast for the tow headed Monroeite and stopped all Collette's rushes down the floor.

Monroe outpassed Janesville on teamwork basis. Their play showed the effects of practice and during the opening period were able to outflank at times with their rapid passing. They were well up on the tricks of the game, but Janesville was fast.

and smothered all clever passing plays.

Monroe played the floor well and personal was in every play. Voss, his guard, outweighed him by eighty-five pounds and was a little giant. His bulk, however, failed to slow him up any and he was close to Dalton's heels throughout the game.

Ryan with Edler, smothered the early attempts of Monroe to work the ball under the Janesville basket and following the beginning of the long shooting were able to mix more in the center work. Ryan had little to do at sticking guard and as things grew dull he would get in the game, take the ball past the center of the floor and then dash back to his place.

The local Cardinals led, 12 to 6, at the close of the first half.

The line up:

A. Haren, 6. 0 0 0
Totals 3 2 3

The defeat was the worst administered loss to the Chicago West Side Browns and the Varsity Cardinals, but both were overtime contests.

The visitors seek a return engagement to be played at the home port. Collette, right guard of the Monroe quintet, tried out for the Notre Dame university five last season. Collette is an all-round athlete and stars in baseball as well as basketball. Two years ago while a member of the Illinois high school football champions, he was the general pick of critics for all-state quarterback. He played with Rockford.

The visitors were well pleased with treatment received at the hands of Manager Caldwell, Referee Koch and the local Cardinals as a whole.

New lights of greater candle power strung in addition to the old lights during the week made conditions better both for spectators and players.

Although Police Sergeant William Gower was an interested witness of the battle, he had no occasion whatever to demonstrate his authority.

Edler is credited with showing the most headwork of the tussle. Ray is always the man of the hour when it comes to tight pinches.

The Peoria "Pickers" at Rockford Friday night defeated the Belvidere Alumni, the team that met defeat at the hands of the Cards a week ago, by a 27 to 21 score. Belvidere is still talking about "the deal" they received Russell Ford, formerly of the New York Yankees, but now a member of the Buffalo Feds, must have used his "emery ball" quite freely against the opposing batters in the new league last season. According to the official pitching records of the Feds, issued last week, Ford tops all the other pitchers in the league.

The Beloit college freshmen took the Janesville Maroons into camp to the tune of 24 to 9, as a curtain-raiser to the big game. The Line City collegians outweighed the local five ten to fifteen pounds per man. They led at the first time whistle 16 to 5. McVicar and Lee did stellar work for the Maroons, while Aldrich and Lehr were the whole college, campus and all for the visitors.

EIGHT TEAM LEAGUE HAS BEEN FORMED IN PANAMA BETWEEN CANAL WORKERS.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)
Panama, Feb. 1.—With the beginning of the dry weather which lasts until May, the baseball season on the Canal Zone begins in earnest with the formation of a new eight team league. All the players are either employees of the Panama Canal or enlisted men in the various military organizations stationed on the isthmus. Already a number of games have been played, enough to show that the teams are very close and interesting one. The games are usually played on Sundays and holidays, a regular schedule having been prepared.

Every team is pledged to refrain from professional practices, and betting on the games is absolutely forbidden by the Panama Canal Government which will dismiss any one from its services found guilty of doing so. Immediately after the formation of the new league Col. George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama Canal, announced that he would not only present the winning team of the season with a handsome pennant, but would also give various valuable prizes to individual players.

THE MASTER KEY

By John Fleming Wilson

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT FOR THIS PAPER MADE WITH THE UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

(Copyright, 1914, by John Fleming Wilson.)

"It's true," Faversham told her. "Dorr couldn't resist what he thought was a chance to get hold of the idol. He was captured, but I managed to get away by my knowledge of the language and the help of some natives who are friendly to me."

For the moment Ruth was speechless; then she inquired for the particulars, and Sir Donald gave them briefly. At the conclusion he remarked, "They won't harm him, but if it gets out that he really intended to steal that image we shall have trouble."

"But he is a prisoner!" she cried. "True," said Faversham wearily. "I didn't dare stay. If they had got me, too, you wouldn't have known anything about what had happened for days possibly."

"But you will save him?" she pleaded. In her appealing beauty Ruth stirred Sir Donald to the depths. He knew now that he loved her.

For love of her he would do what he knew might mean his own death, but he was helpless in the grip of this sweet passion.

Yet he would not go without at least a word of hope and promise.

"I'll get him," he told her. "It will be a hard job, but I'll save him for your sake, Ruth, and when I come back with him!"

She leaned forward, gloriously content that John was to be brought back to her.

She did not read aright the expression in the man's eyes. She threw out her little hands to him joyously.

"I'll always love you if you will," she whispered.

He stared dizzily, and she withdrew before he could put out his hands or say a word. Five minutes later he was hastily making his way back toward the temple.

To his dying day Sir Donald was unable to explain just how he found

the Master Key.

"Then the 'Master Key' will be ours,"

John Dorr nor how he extricated him from the howling mob who yelled for the life of the impious man who had his foul hands on their god.

His own recollection was of desperate using his tongue, his muscles and his knowledge of the usual intricacies of a native city.

John himself could give no clear description, but confessed that he had given up hope of rescue when Sir Donald appeared as by magic.

It was dawn when they reached the boat, and Ruth was on the balcony watching. When Faversham looked up and called out, "I managed it!" she leaned far over, her eyes shining, and threw him a kiss.

The baronet's heart beat high. He had won her for his wife.

The fact that Dorr and Ruth had sailed for India did not escape Wilkerson and Mrs. Darnell's sharp senses, and they sailed, with Drake as their companion, on the next steamer.

"We can easily pick up Dorr's trail where we land," Wilkerson told them. He found this true. Within two days he had also ascertained that they had left for the interior under the escort of Sir Donald Faversham.

Without delay they followed and in due time landed in Bhala, not long after Sir Donald had rescued Dorr from the mob who had seized him when he had tried to recapture the idol. Wilkerson glared when he told Mrs. Darnell of this fact.

"But will you fare any better?" she demanded.

"Sure," he said confidently. "I'll let Dorr and this British baronet bury their fingers getting the thing; then I'll get it away from them. It's a long way back to America, and if we stick tight to Dorr we'll sooner or later be able to handle the plans ourselves."

"Then the 'Master Key' will be ours for good and all."

CHAPTER XXV.

The Escape of Ruth.

AFTER his experience in rescuing John Dorr from the hands of the outraged priests of Bhala, Sir Donald Faversham prepared to start the new day. He could not well realize just what had happened in the twenty-four hours that had just ended. It needed the commonplace details of a morning's toilet to make things seem actual.

And what facts they were that changed his whole future!

Ruth had promised to marry him; Faversham belonged to that great class of Englishmen who unite the virtues of careful training with an adaptability to circumstance which has made Great Britain the colonizer of the world.

He was as formal in many ways as a clock. In others he could amaze the most impulsive and impressionable adventurer.

When he first met Ruth he had had not the faintest notion of wooing her. His admiration had been frank and unreserved, but without any underlying depth of feeling.

His volunteering to join John Dorr and Ruth in this wild search for the missing idol had been what he called a lark.

It was only long association with her, the constant view of her pretty innocence and an occasional glimpse of her profounder and womanly nature that had touched his heart and awakened in him feelings that he had refrained from confessing to himself.

Then came the moment when she had turned to him for help and he had been the single person in the world who could save John Dorr.

Sharp and brief as had been the struggle in his own mind, it had brought him to an acknowledgment of the fact that she was the only woman he wanted for his wife.

On the very tick of her hour of trouble he had ventured to ask his reward for service.

She had promised, and now he, baronet and retired officer of the British army, shook like a boy at the thought of the happiness that awaited him.

They met at breakfast. Dorr still showing the effects of his night's adventures, Ruth bright-eyed from want of sleep and Sir Donald alone presenting the appearance of one who had begun the day bright after a sound night's rest.

Their natural topic of conversation was of Dorr's attempt to capture the idol and Sir Donald's rescue of him.

John could give little satisfaction to Ruth's minute inquiries, and the Englishman confessed that he himself, though much more familiar with the native ways and native temples, had not much notion of exactly how it had all come about nor how he had found Dorr and extricated him.

"The only thing I gather from it all is this," he said amiably. "You had better take my advice in this country and not try to perform any of your western feats. India is a very old country, and they resent here anything that doesn't follow the good old lines."

"I suppose I was very foolish," John confessed ruefully. "But when I saw that image right within reach I simply couldn't resist the temptation to grab it and try to escape."

Sir Donald looked at Ruth meaningfully. "I can't say that I'm a bit sorry, old chap," he told Dorr. "After all, as you say, it's an ill wind that blows no one any good."

Instantly Ruth caught his meaning, and her eyes fell. Yes, she had promised, and this brave gentleman who had risked his life for her sake should not be without his reward.

But she stared miserably at her plate until John rallied her and swore that he would yet get the plans.

"I suppose I was very foolish," John confessed ruefully.

Donald remarked, pointing to a much bedraggled native who had entered the compound and was evidently waiting for some one.

"That's my old servant," he continued. "If you will excuse me I'll go and hear what he has to tell us."

Ruth and John watched the two of them for some time, the tall, carefully dressed Englishman and the dirty native.

They could see that the latter was much excited, and toward the last Sir Donald himself seemed to lose a little of his aplomb.

Finally they saw him nod curtly to the native, who squatted down on the pavement. A moment later he had rejoined them. His usually placid face bore an expression of anxiety.

"What can be the matter?" demanded Ruth.

"Not anything for you to worry about," replied Faversham. "I'm sure I can arrange everything presently; but you certainly stirred up the priests, Dorr."

"Well, what do they intend to do?" inquired John, undisturbed, except that he did not understand a glance exchanged by Ruth and Sir Donald.

"It seems they have started a kind of holy war against us," the baronet answered grimly. "You desecrated their idols and they've excited a lot of the people against you and—"

"And what?" demanded John impatiently.

With a meaning look toward Ruth, Sir Donald faced Dorr. "This is not a place for Miss Gallon," he said formally.

She impulsively turned to John, and he saw her eyes filled with anxiety for him. That satisfied his wounded heart, and he urged her on.

When she had disappeared in the wake of the hastening servant Sir Donald glanced at Dorr and then said

She impulsively turned to John.

"The truth of the matter is, we are known to be stopping here and the mob will undoubtedly visit us shortly."

"But the police?"

Sir Donald looked very uncomfortable indeed. "My dear Dorr, don't you realize that what you and I did last night was purely and simply indefensible? We tried to rob a temple, to be frank about it!"

"I tried to recover some papers belonging to us," he protested.

"We would have a stiff time trying to prove that to the officials here," was the reply. "As a matter of fact, I can't afford to bring this up. I'm still practically an officer and I should have a device of a time clearing myself. You can't afford to call in the police because you're an American, and you broke British law, and I very much fear killed a British subject or two."

"I see," Dorr assented thoughtfully. "But what are we to do?"

"Precisely, precisely, the question," said Sir Donald. "You and I could slip away, but there is the young lady to consider."

"And the plans," said John doggedly. Sir Donald flushed angrily. "I am considering the young lady in this matter."

"And I, as her guardian, have to think of her best interests," was the retort.

Faversham tugged at his mustache in perplexity. Then he said quietly, "I think Miss Gallon has really put her interests in my charge."

"What—what do you mean?" stammered Dorr.

At this moment there came from the street outside the sound of cries and yells and tramping feet. The two men looked at each other. With one accord they withdrew inside the hallway.

"That's the mob coming!" Sir Donald said hoarsely. "Now for it!"

"We must save Ruth at all events!" "Certainly," said Faversham coldly. "But I must plan quickly. Ah, here comes my faithful Achmet!"

The servant spoke rapidly in the vernacular, and Sir Donald answered in the same tongue. Then he turned to John.

"Bring Miss Gallon here quickly," he commanded. "Don't alarm her needlessly."

Ruth responded to the summons without a tremor, and when a few hurried words had informed her of what was afoot she turned to the Englishman and said simply, "What shall we do?"

"I am going to put you in charge of my old servant Achmet," he told her. "I trust him, and he will see you safe. Dorr and I shall have to go a separate way."

By this time the mob had filled the street without and was yelling for vengeance on the sacrilegious white men, punctuating its demands with an occasional stone against the wall.

Achmet bowed low before Ruth and with a gesture indicated that she was to follow him. She hesitated.

Sir Donald curtly said, "Hurry!" She impulsively turned to John, and he saw her eyes filled with anxiety for him. That satisfied his wounded heart, and he urged her on.

When she had disappeared in the wake of the hastening servant Sir Donald glanced at Dorr and then said

SINS GO BEFORE AND GO AFTER JUDGMENT

T. C. THORSON GIVES STRONG SERMON AT NORWEGIAN CHURCH LAST EVENING.

CAIN WAS FOUND OUT

A Crime is Committed.—One Sin Leads to Another, All Following the Sinner.

Taking as his text the 6th chapter and 24th verse of First Timothy, Rev. T. C. Thorson gave a strong sermon at the Norwegian Lutheran Church last evening. The sins of men, the words of the text and a part of his discourse are as follows: "Some men's sins are open and go before them to judgment; and some men also the sins follow them."

Sin is as universal as the air we inhale. "For," says St. Paul, "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." But while all are sinners, the sins of some are open to the world; and go before them to judgment; while the sins of others are hid from the eyes of the world and follow them to judgment. Let us divide the text into its two natural divisions and consider:

1. The sins that go before to judgment.

A crime is committed. The criminal is apprehended and brought before the bar of justice. He is confronted with the evidence and the testimony of many witnesses and convicted. His sins were open, and went before him to justice and to judgment. But sins go further than human courts; they travel from earth to heaven, to the supreme court of the universe.

Cain rose up against his brother and slew him. There was no one present to witness the crime. Cain thought himself safe. The blood stained earth cried to the court of heaven against him and each wound became a mouth to testify against him. His sins were open and went before him to the court of heaven; to be blotted out if he prayed for pardon; if not, to be preserved in the archives of heaven till the day of judgment. Yet in another sense Cain's sins were open and went before him to judgment. Wherever men saw Cain they saw the criminal for he bore the marks upon his countenance. You do well to notice that nature will not be a silent partner to your sins, but sets the ear marks of sin openly upon you, that the world may see and judge.

God called Noah to preach against Nineveh saying: "their sins have come up before me." This cannot mean that the city of Nineveh had just begun to sin, but that their cup of iniquity was full and running over. Therefore destruction was imminent and the consequent urgency of Jonah's mission. Now that portends an ominous truth to the sinner. When the measure of sin is full, destruction is near at hand. The sinner has then the alternative of either repentance or destruction. The king of Nineveh and the people repented and were saved; the Pharisee of the Exodus shows us a man who chose the latter course.

What shall we say, has God set bounds and limits to our sin? Aye, so he has. For such is the nature of our probation here. Each sin committed has a tongue that proclaims our guilt in heaven's court; each sin committed goes before us to fill up the measure of our probation and hastens our destruction. The sins of some men go before them and follow after them. The staggering step, the bearded eyes and bloodied face, the claim the inebriate. His sins are open and go before him. In his home is the imbecile offspring of the drunken father. Some men's sins are open going before them to judgment and also the same men they follow after.

The sins that follow after to judgment. Judas was one of the twelve. He was privileged to associate with Jesus for nearly three years. Openly he was honest; secretly a thief. His sin pursued him relentlessly until he sold his Lord and Master. The secret sin you entertain to-day will be your ruling passion tomorrow, and be sure four sins will find you out. Sometimes a man of influence and good character is precipitated into some terrible crime. He covers it up; it must not be known. But one sin leads to another. While he lifts one foot out of the mire the other sinks yet deeper. His sins follow him constantly. His mind has no peace; anxiety and doubt unnerve his will; and constant fear of exposure undermines his moral energy until he is a moral and physical wreck. Such was King David's plight. Such a man is like the large beautiful oak tree we see in the forest. We admire its towering strength and foliage; but upon closer examination, Oh! the surprise its heart is hollow and decayed.

Some men's sins step on their master's heels; the sins of others follow years behind. A number of years ago a certain man died very suddenly and without apparent cause. He was buried. His wife lived on. Many years after the grave was opened. The grave digger noticed a nail dangling in the skull. The crime was brought to light. The wife confessed that by driving a nail into her husband's skull she had killed him. The crime was buried six feet beneath the earth, while the wife years ran their weary course, but the crime was on the earth refused to keep. Be sure your sins will find you out.

Several winters ago in the northern woods of Minnesota, an Indian was followed by a pack of wolves, which overtook him. A rifle, a number of dead wolves and the bloody snow told the story. Men, beware!

Some of you have a pack of hungry sins hot upon your heels, ready to devour you. Intemperance, dishonesty, vices and evil passions have fixed their eyes upon you to encompass your ruin. Be sure your sins will overtake you.

Young man you cannot sin and escape the consequences. You depend upon the sparkling eyes, the glowing cheek and the shining hair to shield the secret sins that drain your body and soul. For a while you are successful and the muse adds boldness to the venture, but the inevitable comes. The doctor stands at your bedside and shakes his head. You lack the vital power to tide you over the crisis of your illness. The doctor will know your favor will know, your friends will know the shame faced sins you cherished in your bosom.

Now a word to you who pride yourself upon your moral character. In the eyes of the civil law you are righteous. No man can accuse you of a sin. But you are not sinless. Your sins are small humanly speaking, but destructive. The merchant of Panama to be secure from fire builds his house on the piles driven into the water. Soon, however, a species of the madroper, so small as to be seen only by the microscope, begins to work upon it. It bores, saws and eats away until the strong piles are honeycombed and then some dark night the storm arises and dashes against the house and it is a ruin. So, small sins will honeycomb your character until men stand appalled at your fall. Be sure your sins though small, will cause your ruin. Think not that death will obliterate your sins. You may conceal your sins in this world, but not in the next. Your body will return to the dust but not your sins. They will linger at your grave. Gastly specters, they will haunt you in the night, waiting your resurrection to take possession of your soul. There they are, all your sins; sins unforgotten. The sins of your youth, the sins of your manhood and the sins of old age.

Unrepentant man and woman, know you that your sins will bound you, expose you and torment you? Oh! Weep and ask God to forgive you. Pray the prayer of the psalmist: "God be merciful to me a sinner." Have you the courage to face eternity, your friends, the angels, the saints and the radiant seat of God with sins unforgotten? A word and I am done. "A mother told her disobedient son that for every sin he owed on his part he would drive a nail into the wall to stay there until he sued for pardon. There were many nails in the wall. At least the boy repeated out loud. When the last nail was out Johnnie said: "Mother, the nails are out, but the holes remain." Oh, the curse of sin. Every act of disobedience is a nail registered against us until we sue for pardon, and blessed be God the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ who is ever ready to pardon our sins. But lest we trifling with sin and grace, be it burned upon memory that though through forgiveness leave their marks upon the soul.

GLOOM GONE FROM PITTSBURGH INDUSTRY

(Correspondence of The A. P.)

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 1.—"Hard times" talk is rapidly being purged from the atmosphere of the Pittsburgh district. The European war has proven the incentive to increased industry and plants that were run-ning on only part time and others that were not even doing that are operating today at full blast.

Steel is the commodity to which the newborn boom owes its being and promise.

Secrecy essentially surrounds most of the operations of the plants, big and little, in this vicinity. But that the plants are running there can be no doubt. Nor that men are back at work. Two months ago, there was not a bulletin board before any newspaper office but at which crowds would not be found, night and day. They were steel workers, the majority of them, and war and hard times were the two topics of discussion. Today a half dozen or a dozen is the usual extent of the gatherings.

That is, until night. Then there are larger crowds. They are dressed better, smoke better tobacco, chew "tobies" (stogies) instead of black plug and wear bright expressions where gloom was implanted before.

All of the big plants are operating on full time or nearly on full time. At New Castle, Sharon, Tarentum, Vandergrift, Swissvale and other big steel towns in the Pittsburgh district the mills are working full time with a long and steady run assured. Down the river at Morgantown, Parkersburg, Martin's Ferry, Moundsville, Riverside and other West Virginia and Ohio cities the boom is on. The bulletin-board crowds have diminished—but more papers are being sold and more of the things advertised in the newspapers, too.

There are always bargains in the classified columns.

Self-Imposed Taxes.

The taxes are indeed very heavy, and if those laid on by the government were the only ones we had to pay we might more easily discharge them; but we have many others and much more grievous to some of us. We are taxed twice as much by our idleness, three times as much by our pride and four times as much by our folly.—Benjamin Franklin.

The Substitution.

It is a well known fact that both Sir Arthur Sullivan and Sir W. S. Gilbert had a horror of the titles of their operas becoming known until the very night of their performance. This fear that they might be forestalled created considerable confusion at the initial production of "Iolanthe; or, The Peer and the Peri." The opera was rehearsed for weeks under the title of "Perola." It was only at the dress rehearsal that the company was instructed to substitute the name Iolanthe for that of Perola wherever it occurred in the text or lyrics. It was no easy task to replace vocally and in the dialogue a name of three syllables for one of four. Sullivan, however, said (maybe aside) to one or two of the actors who were nervous: "Go ahead and sing the music. Gilbert won't be in front" (Gilbert never attended the first night), "so use any name that you think of first if you are rattled. No one in the audience will be any wiser."

Death Denial Classes.

The most famous example of classes that have caused death is furnished by the story of the sprightly young Duchess of Gordon, who raised so many recruits for the famous Gordon highlanders. In the early days of the regiment recruiting was very slow, but the duchess attired herself in the regimental colors and made a tour of the various markets and fairs, offering to each recruit a guinea and a kiss. Most of the recruits paid for the kiss with their lives. No sooner was the regiment raised than it was sent to fight the French, and in the first engagement in which the duchess recruits participated there was a loss of 300 killed and wounded. All the right flanking company was hit save one, and he, curiously enough, did not happen to be a recruit of the young duchess's kiss. He was a canny Aberdeenshire man, and for an extra guinea he sold his right to another person to a kiss from the duchess's ruby lips. —London Graphic.

The Fire Worshippers.

Azerbaijan, a province in northwestern Persia, is the home of the descendants of the Ghebers, the ancient fire worshippers of Persia. The whole countryside is admirably adapted to the propagation of a fire worshipping creed, for earthquakes and caverns vomiting fumes from subterranean conflagrations abound in the neighborhood of Tabriz. One of the most remarkable caverns in the world is that of Secunderabad, whose character resembles the Grotto del Cane of Naples. It gives off noxious fumes, which at certain times are certain death to man and beast. But the most astonishing place in Azerbaijan is the ruined city of Takht-i-Soleiman, or Solomon's temple. The city stands on a hill 150 feet high, with a wall of thirty feet embracing the crumbling remains of temple and shrine. In the midst is a "lake of deepest azure." Although most of the buildings are of the Mohammedan period, there is one striking mass which has been identified as the temple of the fire worshippers.

A Bit Tired.

A somewhat weather beaten tramp, being asked what was the matter with his coat, replied: "Insomnia. It hasn't had a nap in ten years." —Christian Recorder.
